

Above, Below, and Who Surround

Before me, before my sisters, and my starling brothers, there was nothing. No above, no below, and nothing to surround. There was only Erebus within the Kaos of the vast universe. Now, we see them as the primordial Gods of the universe, but before, there was nothing to be the God of—only the mere potential; and potential the universe latched onto.

Kaos ignited into a flurry of endless possibilities.

Erebus felt the difference; he could see the difference.

A new Form emerged as Light, and my starling brothers were born. But Kaos did not stop his creation, so then my earthly sisters and I came after.

We lived in a perfect and silent union, but after a millennium or more, Kaos had become insatiable again. Then he gifted my sisters and me the ability to sustain life.

As the worlds of the universe grew and prospered, Kaos birthed holy children to watch over life across the universe and guide them, reap them, aid them; the Gods Above, Below and Who Surround.